DANIELSON

George Fiske, a Providence man, 50, who was picked up at Elmville Saturday afternoon by Captain J. H. Bulger, of the Putnam police on suspicion that he was concerned in an attempt at burglarizing the house of William F. Rafferty, of Putnam, as told in the news from the place this morning, was released by the Putnam police Sunday morning after having established that he was in no way concerned in an affair in which his youthful companion tried to rob the Rafferty home, but was apprehended by Captain Bulger and Horace Hayes, an employee of Mr. Rafferty, the young man being hauled out from under a bed in an upstairs room.

After Fiske had been found at Elmville by Captain Bulger, the man was brought to Danielson and the matter reported to Chief John McFarland of the local police. Neither Chief McFarland nor Fiske made any objection to Captain Bulger taking the prisoner back to Putnam.

Fiske, however, satisfied the Putnam officers that he had nothing to do with the break at the Rafferty place, and he was released Sunday morning. Fiske and his partner were engaged in Putnam on Saturday morning in selling flat iron holders.

Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock funeral services for Mrs. Henry A. McEwen were held at the McEwen home on Potter street, Rev. Marvin Shickling, of the Methodist church officiating. Members of Danielson chapter of the Eastern Star and of McGreggor Woman's Relief corps attended the service. The bearers were Sidney Perry, A. P. Burns, Luther Pilling and Nathan D. Prince. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. P. Wood had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Something that has needed doing for a long time was done Saturday afternoon by members of the Sons of Veterans, assisted by Boy Scouts. This was the clearing up of the growth of heavy brush and young woods in what is known as the Sparks cemetery, on Hutchinson street. This small cemetery, where no burial has taken place for years, has been neglected for a long time. Its condition had become such as to appeal to the patriotism of members of the Sons of Veterans, who decided to clear it up and asked the co-operation and assistance of the Boy Scouts, who willingly responded.

A busy afternoon was put in by the band of willing workers and when their labors were completed they had accomplished something well worth while. Brush and other growth had been cut and the lot cleared and cleaned up and made evident to all that it is a burial place of the dead—one of whom is a soldier of the revolutionary war.

The Boy Scouts, who assisted in the work, were Captain John Crosby, Paul Ashworth, Kenneth Warren, Robert Beckley, Douglas Logee, Lyman Lyon, Stanley Allen, Melvin E. Fisher, who lives nearby, and others. They were what was being done that he lent a hand to the accomplishment of the work of the afternoon.

In clearing the lot the workers found that it had been used as a dumping place for refuse of various kinds, and that what was discarded in the future, Rev. W. D. Williams, who had a hand in the good work accomplished, has arranged to have all of the wood of value cut from the trees and distributed to needy families. The large amount of brush is to be used for a bonfire on Atlantic night.

For hunting without having a license and trapping contrary to law, County Game Warden Harry E. Batten caused the arrest and presentation of John Spaulding, of the town of Westfield. The fine imposed was $3, with costs, amounting to $29.44.

Warden Batten is keeping a constant lookout for violators of the game laws. The majority of hunters are keeping within the law, but it is realized that some others do not hesitate to violate the laws in various ways, and it is the members of this class that Warden Batten is watching for.

He was a native of Canada, but had been a resident at or near Wauregan for many years. He was married for the past 25 years had been engaged as a farmer on the place where he died. He was a respected citizen of the community and his death came as a shock to all who knew him. He had been in poor health since last May. He leaves his wife and the following children, Mrs. Lena Bedard, wife of Joseph Bedard, of Norwich; Miss Odessa and Adeline, who live at home; Joseph, of Wauregan; Henry of New London; Raoul, Oscar and Harmonia, the two last named of Danielson.

Ralph Johnson, 18, giving his home as Orange, Mass., George Fiske, 45, who says he is a roamer, were locked up at the police station Saturday afternoon. Johnson will be charged in the city court this morning with statutory burglary and Fiske with peddling without a license. The two men arrived in the city Saturday and began selling flatiron holders from house to house. A woman in the street section saw Johnson enter the home of William Rafferty. Knowing that the family was away, the woman called the police, also Horace Hayes, who works for Mr. Rafferty. The captain and Hayes searched the house and found Johnson under a bed. In his satchel were found five pipes and a pair of opera glasses and in his inside pocket was a lady's gold wrist watch. After he reached the police station Johnson talked freely. He said he read a sign on the door that the family was away and would not return until Sunday night. He also claimed that the back door was open, but this the police do not believe, as they found a pass key on the young man which opened the door. Johnson said that he intended to take all the valuables he could find. "It might just as well make a good haul while the owner is away," said Johnson. When it was learned that another man was working the city with Johnson the police searched the city, but could not locate him. Shortly after noon word was received that the man was standing on Grove street, apparently waiting for a trolley car. When Captain Bulger arrived at the place he was told that the man had been passing an automobile and was given a ride. He was finally located in Danielson and brought back to Putnam. He denied any knowledge of his companion's crime, but was booked and held for peddling without a license.

A lovefest that was unique in the moving picture business in this city was enacted in the Victory theatre Friday night. The characters were living actors and had speaking parts, at least one of them did. When the music stopped and the spotlight was thrown middle stage, the large audience got the thrill of the year and could not believe their sense of sight when they saw the theatre manager, Jacob Albert, and the theatre owner, Nazario Pelouquin, standing side by side with a regular "Doug" smile lighting up their faces. For over a year manager and owner have been carrying on a bloodless battle in the courts over who was to conduct the theatre. The transfer of battle from a justice court up to the superior court, to the supreme court of errors. Scattered along the way was more or less coin of the realm which the legal seconds of each contending party pocketed for services rendered. Besides this there was the cost of staging the battle. During the contest the contestants were far from hobnobbing together; so when they appeared before the audience Friday night it was the surprise of the crowd when they met each other with interest by all movie fans of the city, and this is close to 100 per cent. of Putnam people. The decision of the court was in favor of Pelouquin and it had been believed that he was to take over the theatre and run it in person. Albert was having a farewell week and the fans had settled down in a humdrum path, believing that the excitement would never come back. The surprise of the audience was complete at seeing Messrs. Pelouquin and Albert do their double turn, and there was a breathless silence as Albert began to speak.

The manager told the audience that he and Pelouquin had buried the hatchet and again understood each other; that an agreement had been reached whereby he (Albert) would continue to manage the house and that after closing the place all day Monday it would be reopened Tuesday with three free shows and the public was extended a cordial invitation to be guests of the afternoon and night. A show in the afternoon and one in the evening with a special showing of pictures for children at 4.30 in the afternoon, and all will be absolutely free. Cheers for Mr. Pelouquin and the response would have been sweet music to the ears of a candidate for office. Perhaps there were a few cheers for Albert, too, but anyone who has ever heard and seen him dove of peace never will believe that Manager Albert will continue to manage in the Pelouquin block.

John Moss, commander of Anselm Mijoyette post, American Legion, has been chosen to act as chief marshal for the Armistice day parade. Dr. E. F. Perry, past president of the post, will be chief of staff. The day's program is practically completed. At 11 o'clock Friday morning all of the factory whistles will begin to blow. Those plants that have no whistles will ring bells, and all of the church bells in the city will ring. There as desired would entail an expense of many hundreds of dollars during the course of a year. It is said that the committee is understood to feel that the town should authorize such a large expenditure if the town is favorable to it.

Those gathered to witness the ceremony will uncover and remain silent for a minute as a mark of honor, patriotism and respect. The exercises will conclude with a public dance in the evening for which music will be furnished by the 102d regiment orchestra. The successful drive for the Day Kilmahall hospital deficiency fund has passed the $5,000 mark. The goal is $10,000 and it is expected that the amount will be raised before the first of the year. None of the mills in Putnam have lost more than an hour or two on account of low water, but the manufacturers are kept on the anxious seat by lack of rain.
